

Ltd (GPL), and Godrej Industries Ltd (GIL), fired on multiple cylinders.

As per a BT analysis, GCPL staged a dramatic turnaround, bouncing back from a ₹561 crore loss in FY24 to deliver ₹1,852 crore profits in FY25. GPL's profit grew 86% to ₹1,389 crore. GIL, the group's chemicals arm, also shone with 19% revenue growth and PAT soaring 212% to ₹1,858 crore. Even in the volatile agribusiness space, GAVL managed to lift profits by 12%, reinforcing its ability to navigate uncertainty.

For Nadir Godrej, Chairperson of Godrej Industries Group and Managing Director of Godrej Industries, this performance was the result of multiple engines firing together.

50 | “This was no one-lever result,” Godrej tells BT. “It was a confluence of operational discipline, widening market presence, and a steady pipeline of innovative offerings—each elevating the impact of the others.”

For GCPL, FY25 marked a strong recovery after the previous year's turbulence. Profits had plunged in FY24 due to a non-cash write-off that resulted in a ₹561-crore loss. But Sudhir Sitapati, MD & CEO of GCPL, insists the fundamentals were never in doubt.

“FY24 loss was notional. India will be the strongest growth vector going forward, and that's where the majority of our investment is concentrated,” says Sitapati.

The rebound is evident in product performance. Categories such as liquid detergents and air fresheners are growing in double digits, and GCPL is outpacing category growth. Its Fab liquid detergent, launched last year, has crossed ₹150 crore in revenues within 15 months, a testament to its ability to capture the fast-evolving consumer demand, according to Sitapati.

Market analysts are taking note. InCred Equities' Rohan Kalle says while raw material inflation created near-term pressure, GCPL's non-soaps portfolio grew in mid-teens, signalling resilience. Motilal Oswal Financial Services echoes the sentiment, noting that easing of palm oil prices and stronger domestic performance position the company for a margin recovery in FY26.

Despite the volatile nature of the agribusiness, GAVL has built a model that thrives amid uncertainty.

“GAVL is a unique agri-business platform,” says Balram Singh Yadav, MD of GAVL. “Over the years, we've developed capabilities to navigate volatility across a diversified portfolio, while prioritising margin improvement and long-term sustainable growth.” The company's strategy is to pivot towards branded, value-added, and contract manufacturing streams. Its capital allocation increasingly favours high-margin verticals such as crop protection and vegetable oils. Technology, too, is playing a key role. “Strong performance in domestic crop protection and vegetable oils reflected our ability to align offerings with evolving market and climate realities, while expanding farmer networks through digital and AI-powered advisory platforms,” says Nadir Godrej.

The diversification—spanning palm oil, poultry, dairy, and acquisition of Astec Lifesciences—offers stability and growth avenues. Analysts at Ashika Institutional Equities see GAVL's broad-based revenue, margin and profitability growth as a sign that the company's long-term bets are paying off.

If there's one sector where Godrej delivered a knockout performance in FY25, it is the real estate sector. GPL posted its highest-ever booking value—₹29,444 crore—becoming the top Indian real estate developer during the financial year.

Gaurav Pandey, MD & CEO of GPL, attributes the success to strategic discipline. “Operationally, we've stayed disciplined on capital deployment and focused on high-RoE projects. Strategically, our presence in high-demand micro-markets within MMR (Mumbai
