Metropolitan Region), NCR (National Capital Region), Bengaluru, Pune, and now Hyderabad, accounted for a large share of sales,” he says.

For the latest quarter ended June 2025, GAVL reported nearly 18% rise in consolidated PAT. GIL, GPL and GCPL posted 9%, 7.7% and 0.39% growth in PAT in Q1FY26, respectively.

Beyond metros, GPL is also betting big on Tier-II cities through plotted developments in Indore, Panipat, Raipur, and Baroda. These projects offer faster turnaround, boosting profitability and enabling quicker capital churn. “Plotted projects complement our larger group housing projects, offering resilience in P&L recognition,” says Pandey.

Looking ahead, GPL has guided for a booking value of ₹32,500 crore in FY26, underscoring confidence in India’s robust housing demand. Motilal Oswal has retained a ‘buy’ rating on GPL, implying a potential upside of 22%.

The lesser known but highly profitable arm of the group is its chemicals business, under GIL. In FY25, GIL recorded consolidated revenue of ₹20,183 crore, a 18.6% YoY rise. PAT more than tripled to ₹1,858 crore, up from ₹595 crore in FY24.

Operational discipline and capacity enhancements, along with innovation, have been critical here. From green chemistry-based specialty chemicals to food additives, the company is betting on high-value, niche segments.

“For us, the lifeblood of growth is product innovation,” says

Godrej. “We are applying generative AI in real estate design, developing green chemistry-based specialty chemicals, and launching consumer products that blend functionality with aesthetics. Recent acquisitions in specialty chemicals and food additives position us for long-term capability building.”

Equity analysts remain bullish on Godrej Group’s multi-pronged strategy. Motilal Oswal notes that GCPL is positioned for strong volume growth and margin recovery in the second half of FY26. InCred highlights that easing headwinds in Indonesia and new launches in India could further strengthen performance. Similarly, GAVL’s focus on high-margin verticals is expected to support shareholder returns, while GPL’s record-breaking booking value reinforces its position among India’s top developers.

At its core, Godrej’s journey has always been about balancing tradition with innovation. BT
