

The Transit Cabin Pro—Mokobara

► THE DEMANDS PLACED on a carry-on have changed. It is no longer just a container for clothes but, increasingly, a mobile office. Mokobara's Cabin Pro reflects that shift, with a front compartment designed to provide quick access to a laptop and travel documents. Built from polycarbonate and fitted with Japanese Hinomoto wheels, it balances durability with ease of movement. Inside, a carefully organised layout helps keep cables, devices and clothing in order. The result is a suitcase aimed at travellers who spend as much time in airports as they do at their destination. Available in several colours.

Tramora Cabin Baggage Model T7

► THE TRAMORA T7 is built around a simple premise: that many travellers now work wherever they happen to be. Its most unusual feature is a fold-out laptop stand integrated into the case, allowing it to function as a makeshift workstation. Other details—including USB charging, dedicated tech storage, AirTag compatibility, and Japanese Hinomoto wheels—reinforce its focus on connectivity and convenience. While traditional luggage prioritised storage alone, the T7 reflects a newer category of travel product, one designed for passengers who move between meetings, terminals, and hotel lobbies with little distinction between them. Available in red, indigo, white, and black.
