

$4,400

Per night; has to be booked for 3 nights

$145

For a day pass; $250 for a massage

JOSHUA TREE NATIONAL PARK

96 |

The stunningly stark and bewitching beauty of Joshua Tree National Park with its two distinct desert eco-systems—the Mojave and the Colorado—can put you under a spell. Its surreal geological features, sculpted by strong winds over millions of years, along with the peculiar looking Joshua trees add to the wonder of the 8,00,000 acres of mesmerising terrain. Take a guided tour or book an activity with a local expert. Go stargazing, off-roading, learn about native American cultures, or hike to some hidden spots. You can also camp under the desert sky at one of the numerous campgrounds. Passes cost $30 for a private vehicle.

FRANK SINATRA'S HOME, PALM SPRINGS

After making his first million in 1947, Frank Sinatra commissioned a home in Palm Springs. Spanning 4,500 sq. ft., the property sleeps eight and has four bedrooms, seven bathrooms (go figure!), and a swimming pool that many feel looks like a piano. It's here that Ol' Blue Eyes (as Sinatra was referred to) lived with his wife, actor Ava Gardner, from 1951 to 1957. The home has a vanity wall full of his pictures, his records with the original record player, and a crack in the sink supposedly caused during a fight. The house, called Twin Palms, named after the two palm trees by the pool side where Sinatra often hoisted his Jack Daniels emblem flag—which indicated an invite to his friends that revelry and cocktails were in order—is today available for rent on Airbnb. Prices fluctuate but average around $4,400 per night; it has to be booked for a minimum of three nights.

SPA DAY IN PALM SPRINGS

Nothing spells vacation like a day at a spa. Palm Springs,

1. Joshua Tree National Park's beauty can put you under a spell

2. Frank Sinatra's home in Palm Springs features a pool, which some say looks like a piano

PHOTO BY GETTY IMAGES

