

HALDIRAM'S

Bhujia Goes Global

The 88-year-old Indian snacking giant, Haldiram's, is fuelling global expansion by raising funds from marquee investment firms

BY ARNAB DUTTA

BIG BITE To leverage its popularity among non-resident Indians in the USA and West Asian countries, Haldiram's plans to use some of the funds to increase its presence in these markets

► WHAT BEGAN AS a small namkeen shop in Rajasthan's Bikaner in 1937 by Ganga Bhishen Agarwal is set to capture global consumer markets. India's leading homegrown packaged foods major, Haldiram's, is raising significant amounts from global investment firms.

The 88-year-old family-run

$1 BN

THE AMOUNT HALDIRAM'S RAISED
SELLING A 10% STAKE, TAKING ITS
VALUATION CLOSE TO $10 BILLION
(₹87,000 CRORE)

group will fund its growth plans in overseas markets with the receipts. Haldiram's Snacks Food, a flagship entity of Haldiram's Group, recently raised capital from three leading investment companies: Temasek, Alpha Wave, and International Holding Company (IHC). While the company did not specify details, sources say it