By the early 2000s, KPIT faced a crucial crossroad. The IT export market had slowed post-9/11, the dotcom bust, and the end of Y2K. “We had to make a strategic decision,” Patil says. While most firms doubled down on banking, finance, and telecom, KPIT took a contrarian route—manufacturing.

This decision paved the way for a game-changing partnership with Cummins around 2002 to establish KPIT Cummins Infosystems, catapulting the JV’s revenues from $10 million to $100 million.

Yet, the biggest inflection point came when KPIT decided to carve out a niche in the global automotive soft-
