nostics, pharmaceuticals, and biotech—make up the remaining 25%.

Kalra took charge in 2019, and since then has led the company to an impressive 19 consecutive quarters of revenue growth. The company clocked nearly ₹10,000 crore revenue in FY24—a 19.9% year-on-year increase.

But what catalysed this transformation?

REDEFINING VISION

Kalra credits it to a strategic overhaul. “We reorganised our go-to-market strategy by focusing on industry verticals and service lines,” he says. The company hired external talent. It also identified new business opportunities by expanding its reach through alternative channels such as private equity and influencer networks, including sourcing advisors.
