

“WE DON’T THINK A SLOWDOWN IS GOING TO AFFECT US”

The jury for the 13th edition of BT India’s Best CEOs awards conferred the RESILIENT CEO AWARD on Deepinder Goyal, Founder & CEO of Eternal, in recognition of his work in ensuring growth/profitability and leading the company into the BSE Sensex in 2024—the first new-age company (start-up) to find a place in the index. Goyal discusses the company’s growth and expansion plans with Siddharth Zarabi, Editor of Business Today. Edited excerpts:

How important was it for Zomato to become profitable? What does that mean for profitability across business verticals?

Turning profitable is important for every business. The food business turned profitable at the right time, as did Blinkit. We don’t really plan on profitability and just want to do the right thing. I think there’s a lot to look forward to in terms of growth of all businesses, as well as profitability. If growth happens, profitability should happen too.

There are concerns around slowing growth in certain segments. How are you looking at the overall consumer behaviour at this point?

If you look at the businesses we are in, which is food and grocery and retail at the lower end, we’re not seeing much of a macro slowdown. For the food delivery business, we are still expecting more than 20% growth year-on-year. So, given the nascent stage of the businesses we are in, we don’t think a slowdown is going to affect us. We don’t feel it at our end.
