of size. Airlines are disappearing, consolidation is taking place, and at the end of the day, we get airlines of a certain size and scale," he says.

Elbers welcomes the competition with Air India as it keeps both on their toes. "And there's going to be a couple of other airlines trying to get their share of the pie, and that's completely fine," he adds.

For the CEO, who has been to 37 of the 91 domestic destinations IndiGo flies to, India has been a great learning experience with a diversity of people and culture. He finds the optimism of the country contagious.

Industry insiders have noted Elbers' enthusiasm for all things Indian, including the fact that he never misses an opportunity to participate in local festivals. Taking the holy dip at the Maha Kumbh in Prayagraj, enjoying Holi at Mathura-Vrindavan, dancing to famous Bhangra numbers and enjoying local cuisines—his social media timeline is loaded with pictures from several cities.

Elbers has also picked up some key Hindi words, the first of which was 'Jugaad', loosely translated as frugal innovation. But he says with a grin, it's 'Jaldi, Jaldi', or quickly, that describes IndiGo's journey best. BT
