

BULGARI Octo Finissimo Ultra COSC

Bulgari has once again set the world record for creating the thinnest watch on the planet with the Octo Finissimo Ultra COSC, which is 1.70 mm thick, even thinner than the 1.80 mm it had achieved in 2022. The new watch, limited to only 20 pieces, also boasts of the world's thinnest chronometer. The 40-millimetre case houses a 170-component manually wound movement with a tungsten carbide back, providing much-needed durability on such a slender piece. If you don't want to use traditional methods for setting and winding the watch, you can place it in its dedicated case, equipped with a digital display. The desired time is then programmed, and the adjustment cycle is launched at the touch of a button. It's like having a watchmaker at home.
