

CLIMATE ACTION AFTER TREXIT

THE REVERSAL OF THE US GOVERNMENT'S POLICIES ON CLIMATE FINANCE AND WITHDRAWAL FROM THE PARIS AGREEMENT HAVE NOT IMPACTED INDIA'S DECARBONISATION PLANS FOR NOW. BUT SELF-DEPENDENCE AND NEW ALIGNMENTS ARE THE KEY TO MEETING THE NET-ZERO TARGET BY 2070

DRILL, BABY, DRILL. This slogan used by the Republicans in 2008 is now almost eponymous with US President Donald Trump's policies around climate change and energy transition.

Under the Trump 2.0 administration, the US has been reversing several policies on climate change, even as it focusses on drilling oil, using more fossil fuels and expanding mining. It has also withdrawn from the Paris Agreement that seeks to limit global temperature increase to less than 2°Celsius and strive to keep it at 1.5°Celsius.

"In recent years, burdensome and ideologically motivated regulations have impeded the development of these resources, limited the generation of reliable and affordable electricity, reduced job creation, and inflicted high energy costs upon our citizens," Trump's first Executive Order on Unleashing American Energy, signed on the day he took the oath of office on January 20, noted.

The countries of the Global South have time and again called out developed countries for inadequate financial support to mitigate the impact of climate
