Sleeping with the Enemy

The rift between coalition partners in Jammu and Kashmir—Congress and the People's Democratic Party (PDP)—seems to be widening by the day. Ever since Mufti Mohammad Sayeed was forced to vacate the chief minister's chair for Congress's Ghulam Nabi Azad in 2005 under a power-sharing agreement, PDP has been raising issues like demilitarisation, which the Congress has been opposing. The result—elections may take place sooner than later, says Aijaz Hussain.

Attempt to do an Advani on Modi
Rivals, particularly Congress, are accusing Gujarat Chief Minister Narendra Modi of giving a "secular certificate to Jinnah". By raking up the issue, they hope to do an Advani on him and dislodge him in the forthcoming state Assembly polls. They fear he may again take resort to his Hindutva image to win, reports Associate Editor Uday Mahurkar.

Heiress Rising

Usually Punjabi family businesses are passed down to sons. This trend has been broken by the many heiresses who have taken the responsibility of carrying forward their family business empires. These include the Vardhman Group, MBD Group and the famous Choko La, tell Assistant Editor Ramesh Vinayak and Newly Paul.
