

Art has the rare power to transcend time and trends. It is significant how India's artistic voices are resonating internationally

KIRAN NADAR

FOUNDER AND CHAIRPERSON, KIRAN NADAR MUSEUM OF ART

India's Art Awakening

120 |

BY PROMOTING
ACCESS AND ART
EDUCATION, WE CAN
SHAPE A GENERATION
THAT VIEWS ART AS A BRIDGE BETWEEN LIVED REALITIES AND POSSIBILITIES FOR THE FUTURE

► INDIA'S ART WORLD has grown into one of the most dynamic emerging markets, with artists commanding international attention and the domestic ecosystem maturing in exciting ways. The market is experiencing unprecedented growth with record-breaking auctions of masters like M.F. Husain, Amrita Sher-Gil, S.H. Raza, and V.S. Gaitonde; rising contemporary art sales; and increasing institutional interest worldwide. Unlike the Western art market, which has had centuries to evolve, ours is still relatively young. The culture of living with original artworks is only now catching on, yet it is rapidly becoming a part of urban life. Unlike other forms of luxury, art has the rare power to transcend time and trends. This signals a shift where collecting is becoming less about status and more about building a conscious lifestyle choice.

The ecosystem is being strengthened by the rise of new galleries, alongside a surge in biennales and art fairs, and an increasingly engaged audience. What excites me most is seeing more younger, first-time art