

The Coach Who Turns AI Pressure Into Human Presence

In boardrooms across India, algorithms are winning the speed race. Yet beneath the noise, leaders are burning out, trapped in pressure they cannot outpace. Into this turbulence steps Kuruva Venkataramana Murthy, showing that while AI can automate, only Dharma can awaken.

Author of Inspire Impact Ignite and AI-Driven Leadership: Adapt. Amplify. Accelerate, Murthy is not a consultant in the conventional sense. A TEDx speaker recognized by the United Nations, the Indian government, and global diplomats, he has built One in the Universe into India's most trusted brand for conscious leadership and healing commerce. His work is reshaping how organizations see growth, resilience, and identity in the AI era.

Murthy's AAA framework—Adapt with Awareness, Amplify Ethics, Accelerate to Align—draws from India's timeless Panchashila principles. It has already powered corporate transformations, from frontline teams rediscovering clarity to senior executives breaking cycles of reactive leadership. In one recent engagement, a company riddled with attrition reversed course in just 90 days, not by tightening controls but by elevating presence.

What makes Murthy a true game changer is his refusal to separate profit from presence. He speaks of resilience not as a wellness trend but as the bedrock of sustainable business in an algorithmic world. His methods fuse ancient clarity with modern urgency, positioning Indian leadership at the front of the global conversation. "AI can outthink you in a second," Murthy says. "But no algorithm can stand in for a leader who is fully present." It is this conviction that is drawing founders, CEOs, and institutions to his work—from Fortune 500 aspirations to family-run enterprises seeking renewal.

As India steps into its defining decade of technology and transformation, Murthy insists the greatest advantage is not faster code or bigger data, but leaders who can hold stillness in the storm. His rise from author to architect of a new leadership ethos signals a shift: the next era of Indian business will be led not by titles, but by presence.
