FROM HOLLYWOOD'S SHINING stars to the world's renowned fashion designers, 'quiet luxury' is becoming all the rage, not just for women but among men, too. It represents a return to elegance and subtlety, far removed from the once dominant display of ostentatious logos and grandiosity.

This year, quiet luxury has been one of the biggest buzzwords: So often used in common parlance about discreetly tasteful high spending that it has been loudly satirised on social media. Google search-
