“It is about leveraging your portfolio to make it relevant and India, to that extent, is no different except that the size of the opportunity is much bigger, and the market is growing fast”

track. It was an obvious mandate... and important since times were difficult. It is my belief that if Danone was twice as large, the world would have been a better place, and you cannot say that about every company.

The job has clearly been something to look forward to, but is demanding as well. It feels like 3 minutes and 30 years at the same time (laughs). I took over towards the end of the pandemic and it must be said this is a very different company [now] since growth is back.

Q: Can you point to the decisions that worked?

A: It was really about regaining the edge on execu-
