According to Pushpa Bector, Senior Executive Director & Business Head of DLF Retail, there are many brands wanting to set up shop in India that are in touch with them. “On the one hand, there are several new brands that are in talks with us to launch for the first time in India and on the other there are many tenants who want to expand their existing retail area. Either way we need to have more space made available for those who require it, and we hope to expand the area of DLF Emporio in the near future,” says Bector, adding that both foreign luxury brands and Indian designer brands are interested in having their retail outlets with DLF. Sensing the demand, the company has charted its expansion plans. At the moment DLF Emporio has about 300,000 sq. ft of space, and its second luxury mall in Delhi, The Chanakya, about 188,000 sq. ft. “We currently have about 140 brands with us and with the expansion we hope to add another 100,” says Bector.

Phoenix, too, is in expansion mode. It is building a 1 million sq. ft luxury mall called Grand Victoria in Kolkata and the 1.2 million sq. ft Phoenix Mall of Asia in Bengaluru. According to Ruia of Phoenix, the total retail space of The Palladium in Mumbai will be increased from the existing 850,000 sq. ft to 1.6 million sq. ft. “The leasing pattern of our new malls will be dynamic with the evolving landscape of retail. Even though we propose to host luxury brands in due course of time, these malls will have bridge-to-luxury brands along with high-end watches and jewellery, bespoke experiences and F&B outlets,” she says.
