Chandni Kapadia is a remarkable professional who seamlessly integrates diverse roles: leader, lawyer, designer, educationist, and speaker. Her career trajectory, from fashion professional to heading a prestigious university, is a testament to her versatility and acumen. Chandni's journey, which began in the vibrant city of New York at the Fashion Institute of Technology, and continued with an MBA from the London School of Economics, is marked by her determination and forward-thinking vision.

A visionary business leader, Chandni has held influential leadership roles, including as Country and Asia-Pacific Head for several luxury brands. Her achievements span across launching Starbucks in India and spearheading the growth of global brands like Accessorize and Calvin Klein. Her impressive portfolio also includes leadership roles at Delta Trade International and Debenhams PLC, where she was instrumental in driving organizational success.

Chandni's experience working across various cultures has sharpened her ability to build dynamic, efficient teams. She believes in fair play, diversity, and equal opportunities, values she has instilled in her work environment. Cherishing her experiences, she exclaims, "Working with teams across different cultures has always been a privilege for me. The diversity brings in unique perspectives, and it fosters a spirit of professionalism and excellence that's truly unmatched. I thrive in such environments where collaboration transcends borders, allowing us to learn from each other and achieve something extraordinary together".

Beyond her corporate success, Chandni's passion for legal expertise saw her earn a law degree with 11 gold medals. Her mastery of corporate and business law has been pivotal in her leadership, allowing her to navigate complex business environments with strategic insight.

Chandni's contributions to education are equally inspiring. Over the last decade, she has been driving the global ambitions of GLS University, establishing international collaborations with Ivy League institutions such as Harvard and Newcastle University. Under her leadership, the university has become a breeding ground for future corporate leaders, aligning academic excellence with industry needs.

Recognized for her work, Chandni has received several prestigious accolades, including Asia's Most Trusted Leader at the House of Lords and the Black Swan Award for Women Empowerment. She has also shared her experiences as a TEDx speaker, inspiring others to pursue their dreams.

Chandni's multifaceted career is rounded off with her deep commitment to initiatives focused on animal welfare and the prevention of cruelty to animals. Her dedication to this cause is reflected in her work with organizations that advocate for animal rights, promote ethical treatment, and support the protection of vulnerable species. Her commitment to preventing cruelty to animals stems from her strong belief in compassion and responsible stewardship of the environment. In her words, "Compassion is at the heart of everything we do. Protecting and caring for animals is not just a responsibility but a reflection of our humanity. Together, we can create a kinder world where every creature is treated with the dignity and respect they deserve". This philosophy, coupled with her relentless drive, ensures her legacy as a leader who not only excels but paves the way for others to follow.
