

Empire Builder

As the CEO of Myntra, Nandita Sinha is re-defining online retail. With over a decade in India's e-commerce space, Sinha's resume shines with leadership roles at industry giants, alongside her entrepreneurial roots as Co-founder of the now-closed

PHOTO BY HARDIK CHHABRA

NANDITA SINHA,
44, CEO, Myntra

mybabycart.com. Her early career as a Product Manager for Britannia's MarieGold added to her business acumen. The 44-year-old is one of the first women to helm the Indian arm of a multinational owned e-commerce firm. Sinha's leadership style and achievements make her a transformative force to watch out for. BT

— BY PALAK AGARWAL

PHOTO BY CHANDRADEEP KUMAR

SHRADHA SURI MARWAH
46, CMD, Subros Ltd

Keeping it Cool

SHRADHA SURI MARWAH has shouldered big responsibilities from a very young age. She is today the Chairperson and Managing Director of Subros Ltd, the largest manufacturer of automotive condensers in India. The company also provides thermal products for automobile manufacturers.

Under Marwah's leadership, the company witnessed a 109% increase in net profit to ₹97.66 crore in FY24 and a 9% surge in operating revenue to ₹3,070.50 crore.

The company boasts a market share of approximately 43% in passenger car AC- and 54% in truck AC and blower segments. With seven manufacturing plants across India, it also operates two technical centres and a tool engineering centre, all located in Noida. Additionally, Marwah, An alumnus of the London School of Economics and Leeds University Business School, also serves as the President of the Automotive Component Manufacturers Association of India. BT

— BY ASTHA ORIEL

131

LEADER IN INNOVATION

AS FEDEX'S PRESIDENT (Middle East, Indian subcontinent and Africa), Kami Viswanathan has a lot on her plate. It means responsibilities across 84 countries. She joined FedEx in early 2021 as Vice President (Marketing) for Asia Pacific, Middle East and Africa, responsible for strategy and commercial growth in the region apart from leading corporate innovation efforts out of India. She grew the Middle East and Africa markets, striking many strategic alliances. Her prior engagements in consulting, entrepreneurship, and investing, include co-founding Lumina Datamatics, an educational content provider and founding Work4.o Capital, a cross-border investment firm. Viswanathan, a gold medallist from the National Law School of India, is also a Harvard Business School alumnus. She has also worked at Arthur Andersen's business advisory practice. Her knowledge and experience make her a force to watch out for. BT

— BY KRISHNA GOPALAN

KAMI VISWANATHAN,
48, President
(Middle East, Indian subcontinent, and Africa), FedEx

