

two years and wrote off ₹200 crore in the top line because we felt that the entire segment wasn't profitable. It is about optimising the bottom line, increasing our average selling prices, and reducing the market where the margin is less," explains Saraf. The company reported revenue of ₹660 crore in FY23, the latest year for which data is available.

Saraf is now focusing on products over 43 inches and 4K Ultra HD, a screen resolution that has four times the pixels of Full HD. In FY25, the company has already launched four new premium products in different segments. It has also expanded its business in the UAE, Qatar, Bahrain, Kuwait, and in some countries in Africa.

"With no bank debt or investor, I am profitable in every transaction. I believe in unit economics, and we have been profitable for the last 11 years. The premiumisation of profit is the bedrock of my principles. My approach is old school with new technology," says Saraf, adding that youth and luxury work for the company, and her vision is to double down even more on premium.

Saraf is also exploring options for growth, such as an IPO, but she's in no hurry and will wait for the right opportunity and partners. After all, her instincts haven't failed her so far. BT

— BY RICHA SHARMA

Stitching it up

ASK DIPALI GOENKA to describe Welspun Living, and pat comes the reply: "A home solutions company." The excitement in her voice is palpable as she gets into the finer points. "We have a very robust integrated supply chain for quickly, and product offerings need to keep pace with that. One way to get all that right is to harness technology and use it smartly. "A good supply chain only sharpens the overall customer experience. Technology plays a crucial role in its ability to forecast," says Goenka. She speaks of AI and Industry 4.0 as being important ways to further enhance customer experience. Besides, she sees India playing a much bigger role in the global supply chains going ahead. She's also excited about getting an R&D centre off the ground by next year. Pausing for a second, she corrects herself to say, "We are a home solutions company established by technology with the bedrock being sustainability." That vision has ensured that she is a regular on the BT MPW list. BT

— BY KRISHNA GOPALAN

ADVICE TO YOUR YOUNGER SELF

Be a student and make sure you learn all the time

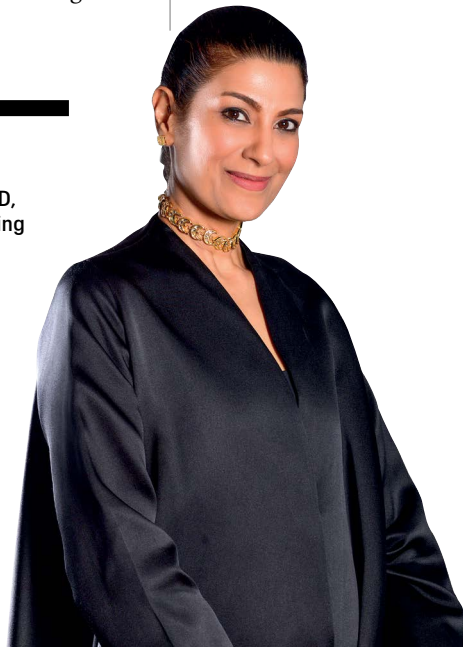

MANTRA TO NAVIGATE CHALLENGES

Believe in yourself and lead from the front

our (home textile) business. Cotton is sourced from the farmers, and at least 2,000 of them are women," she says. For a home solutions company to flourish, it must have a suite of offerings. "The whole idea is to own the consumer," Goenka says. She travels extensively to meet her customers and to have a finger on the pulse. This is a business where trends change

DIPALI GOENKA

55, CEO & MD, Welspun Living

GHAZAL ALAGH

36, Co-founder and Chief Innovation Officer, Mamaearth

BEAUTY BOOST

Ghazal Alagh, Co-founder and Chief Innovation Officer at Honasa Consumer Ltd, the parent company of Mamaearth, is today a force to reckon with in India's D2C beauty landscape. Today, Honasa is a publicly traded entity and posted a record profit of ₹30 crore in the March 2024 quarter. "Our goal at Honasa is to build India's largest portfolio of brands and drive the next phase of growth in the beauty and personal care industry with a deep understanding of evolving consumer needs," Alagh tells BT. Her leadership and the brand's appeal among the youth are set to keep Mamaearth on a growth trajectory. BT

— BY PALAK AGARWAL

ADVICE TO YOUR YOUNGER SELF

Trust yourself, your journey, and your ideas

MANTRA TO NAVIGATE CHALLENGES

First, acknowledge the problem. Next, seek help when needed

PHOTO BY MANDAR DEODHAR