

SHINING SUN

FOR ANYONE LIVING in south India, the Sun network is a familiar name. Be it television broadcasting, radio, cable distribution, DTH, or the Indian Premier League, the brand seamlessly transcends boundaries. Specifically, in Tamil Nadu, one of the largest advertising markets in the country, the dominance is difficult to miss.

Kavery Kalanithi's professional journey has been intricately linked to the evolution of Sun TV—the channel that kicked off the overall business—since its inception in April 1993. “As our reach went beyond Tamil Nadu and covered the whole of south India, my role became larger. Then,

ADVICE TO YOUR YOUNGER SELF

The biggest challenge is being yourself in a society when everyone wants to change you

MANTRA TO NAVIGATE CHALLENGES

Success is not final. Failure is not fatal. It is the courage to continue that counts as the footprint extended into other parts of the world, where the south Indian diaspora lived, my job has only become more challenging, rewarding, and exciting,” she says.

In FY24, Sun TV's total income increased 15% year-on-year to ₹4,787 crore, while profit grew nearly 13% YoY to ₹1,925 crore.

The network has more

KAVERI KALANITHI
55, Executive Director, Sun TV Network

72 |

KATRINA KAIF
41, Actor & Entrepreneur

PHOTO BY MILIND SHELTE

BEAUTY EMPIRE

KATRINA KAIF VENTURED into entrepreneurship in 2019 with the launch of her cosmetics brand, Kay Beauty, in collaboration with beauty retailer Nykaa. In just five years, Kay Beauty has established itself as one of the top-selling cosmetic brands in India, achieving a gross merchandise value (GMV) run rate of ₹170 crore in FY24. The brand has also expanded offline, and is now available in over 300 retail stores across more than 1,600 cities.

Kaif emphasises that Kay Beauty's core mission is “to cater to all skin types”.

Earlier this year, Kay Beauty entered the UAE market through a partnership with Nysaa, Nykaa's UAE-based subsidiary. “It was always my vision to take Kay Beauty global and share our offering with customers across different geographies, so they can experience the product first-hand. The brand's foray

WHY SHE MATTERS

Besides being a successful entrepreneur, Kaif has over 80 million followers on Instagram, and is among the highest-paid female actors in Bollywood. She is also the brand ambassador for Etihad Airways