

12 months our change in strategy yielded very good results. In FY24, we grew by 19% year-on-year in net revenue. And after a solid first quarter, in the second quarter of FY25, we grew by about 20% with sales of analogue watches expanding by 25%," Mitra says. Her next target? Hitting ₹10,000 crore in consumer revenue by 2027. BT constraints nearly halted her dreams. Through sheer perseverance, she secured a last-minute scholarship, enabling her to complete her studies. This experience deepened her belief that it is only resilience in the face of adversity that can provide a way out when all else seems to fail.

It is these qualities that have enabled the company, under Taku's leadership, to reach major milestones, including achieving profitability and securing a nod from markets regulator Sebi for an IPO. The company's Pocket UPI product has made it the largest wallet player in India by gross transaction value, a strong testament to its role in the competitive fintech sector.

Reflecting on the significance of Sebi's nod, Taku says: "While I prefer not to dive too deeply into IPO conversations, this approval reinforces our growth trajectory and positions us for the next phase of expansion."

For Taku, success is about patience, steady growth, and viewing challenges as opportunities for learning. Her journey continues to inspire, embodying a commitment to both professional and personal growth. BT

SETTING STANDARDS

IN THE CHEMICALS industry, where men have traditionally held sway, Vinati Saraf Mutreja has broken the mould. As CEO and Managing Director of Vinati Organics, she shows that leadership isn't bound by gender.

Mutreja has spent nearly two decades at Vinati Organics, guiding its development with a strategy centred on innovation. "In the past 20 years, we have focussed on 'Innovate and Expand.' This approach has helped us diversify our product range, scale up existing offerings, and achieve stable financial and operational results while positively impacting the environment and the communities where we operate," Mutreja explains.

Her strategy has secured Vinati Organics a significant place in the global market, with exports making up a large portion of its business. "Our model depends heavily on exports, which shows that our products and processes meet industry standards rather than simply following them," she says.

For FY24, Vinati Organics reported a total income of ₹1,939 crore, Ebitda of ₹509 crore, and profit after tax (PAT) of ₹323 crore. "Revenue has grown at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 17% over the last four years," she says.

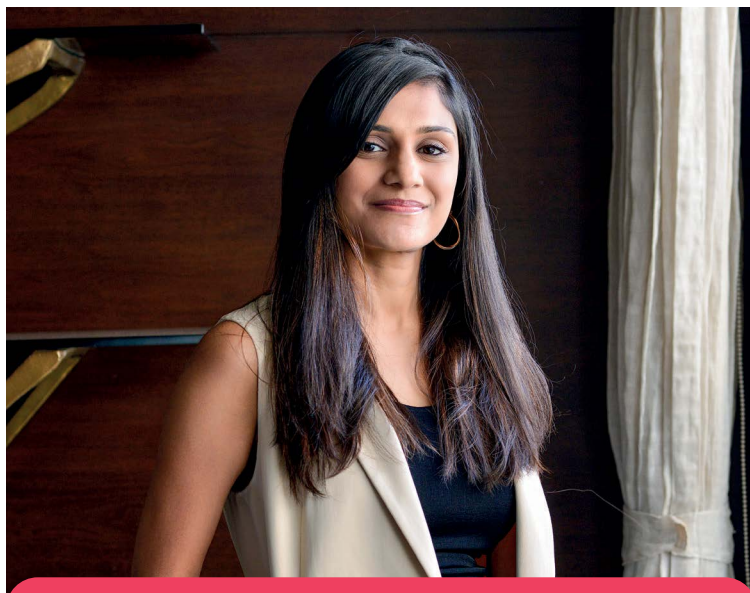

Under Mutreja's visionary leadership, Vinati Organics looks poised for continued growth in the years to come. BT
