

Following the Scent

Dubai-based CEO of the Imtiyaz Rasasi Group, Imtiyaz Kalsekar, sat down with Business Today to trace the evolution of the Rasasi house of perfumes, tackle the perfume industry's biggest challenges, and share his vision for affordable luxury in a changing world. Imtiyaz and his recently launched I'm Rasasi line of perfumes take forward a family legacy of over 4 decades. The story of the brand is marked by the grit and perseverance of his father, Abdul Razak Kalsekar, who grew up an orphan in Ratnagiri district in Maharashtra's Konkan region. He struggled until 1979, when he founded Rasasi Perfumes in Dubai at the age of 53. Rasasi is made up of the initials of his father and siblings—a family business even in a literal sense. Imtiyaz blends this heritage with a touch of modernity for the next generation of perfume connoisseurs in the I'm Rasasi perfumes.
