NPCI is constantly building new use cases, like with the use of UPI for investing in initial public offerings

3

It is now looking to build newer use cases in terms of enabling credit lines, which could be a game changer

4

According to NPCI, lenders like SBI, HDFC Bank, ICICI Bank and some others have already gone live with this feature

5

But it must address the revenue stream question for payments service providers since they are not allowed to charge a fee for P2P transactions
