

PHOTO BY MILIND SHELTE

“NEW PLAYERS DO NOT NEED TO HARD SELL THE CONCEPT OF MFs”

A. Balasubramanian, MD & CEO of Aditya Birla Sun Life AMC, talks about new entrants to the mutual funds space, regulatory changes, and the way ahead

BY ASHISH RUKHAIYAR

A. BALASUBRAMANIAN, MD & CEO of Aditya Birla Sun Life AMC, has spent more than three decades in the Indian mutual fund (MF) industry, which is currently seeing heightened traction both in terms of new players coming in and rising assets under management (AUM). The 58-year-old tells Business Today that new players will help expand the market but will not be able to disrupt the sector in a big way, given the product and distribution mix of the large existing fund houses. Edited excerpts:

What is attracting so many new players to the MF space?

MFs have become an integral part of the financial industry. The fact that the industry is growing at a strong rate with the AUM crossing ₹50 lakh crore shows that it has got acceptance from the public at large... The SIP way of investing has gained wide acceptance and that is, in a way, offering [an] opportunity on a platter to the new players. The hard work done by all the old players over the past three decades will reap benefits to not only the large players, but also the new players. Therefore, the new players do not need to hard sell the concept of mutual