

Axis Bank: Thriving in a Dynamic Landscape

Amidst global economic challenges and evolving market dynamics, financial institutions worldwide are grappling with the need for agility and adaptability. A combination of fiscal consolidation, monetary tightening, and geopolitical factors necessitates a swift and strategic response. In this dynamic landscape, Axis Bank stands out, with its versatile team serving as a cornerstone of its strength and adaptability.

"Our team exemplifies agility," asserts Amitabh Chaudhry, MD & CEO of Axis Bank. "Their role in steering change is undeniable. The capabilities of our team members become even more crucial during challenging times."

Market volatility and regulatory fluctuations are now commonplace. The industry has faced increased market volatility and uncertainty, alongside a constant influx of new regulations and heightened regulatory vigilance. This ever-evolving landscape demands a workforce capable of adapting quickly and effectively, a quality Chaudhry underscores: "In such situations, the team's adaptability becomes the decisive factor in achieving success."

At the core of Axis Bank's approach lies a commitment to fostering a performance-driven culture. This culture emphasizes strengthening the organization's core, building for the future, and capitalizing on strategic opportunities. Rajkamal Vempati, President & Head of Human Resources at Axis Bank, highlights the importance of a clear vision: "We believe a compelling and relatable vision is crucial. Five years ago, we launched our 'Growth Profitability and Sustainability' strategy, also known as the 'House of GPS,' to provide a unifying framework for our teams."

Investing in significant transformation programs and fostering distinct business strengths across various segments bolsters the bank's long-term prospects. "Our aim is to create a sustainable organization that performs exceptionally well under any market condition," adds Chaudhry.

Axis Bank's commitment to its employees during the COVID-19 crisis serves as another testament to its dedication to agility and performance. The bank not only weathered the storm effectively but also capitalized on relevant business opportunities, demonstrating the strength and resilience of its satisfied and adaptable workforce. This ability to adapt and thrive in challenging circumstances underscores Axis Bank's position as a leader in the evolving financial landscape.

Bajaj Allianz: Excelling with Openness to Ideas

Tarun Chugh - MD & CEO

This organization prides itself for always putting its people at the centre. They in fact go by a rather simple policy; unhappy teams can't give you happy customers. With around 25,000 employees on its roll and despite having a mammoth organisational structure, they identify as a 'listening' organization. The core strength of the organisation is uniquely recognised globally, as a team that interacts and a leadership that values and accommodates the views of its teams.

"HR for me is not another function, it is a partner in my strategy, and I truly believe that a leader by himself or herself is not really effective if the team around isn't as good," says Tarun Chugh, MD & CEO, Bajaj Allianz Life Insurance.

Being people driven and intentionally invested in the growth and development of its talent, this organization focuses on aspects beyond performance and result orientation. The anchor for them is emphasis on people who are self-aware, can collaborate effectively and add value to the process by taking the team along with them. To further enable people development and build capability, there are several learning & coaching interventions to help them realise their true potential.

"Our talent processes are very thorough and go all the way down to middle management and further down. I also believe that there is no better way to understand and implement what's best for the organization than through active listening. At BALIC, we have focused on being a listening organization, and that has made a significant positive impact," says Chugh.

Through active listening to the needs of the employees, BALIC has been able to provide the right environment for employees, be it in the form of empowerment, flexibility, talent mobility and work-life balance. These contribute to a positive experience for its people which is supported by their high engagement score and has enabled them to emerge as Kincentric Best Employer India 2023 and India Best Employers Club 2024.
